Engineer Accused In Eastern Wreck

BODIES OF 15 RECOVERED IN TRAIN DEBRIS

Five Others Still Are Missing; 200 Estimated to Have Been Injured.

ACCUSED OF NEGLIGENCE

Engineer Faces Manslaughter Charge; Investigation of Accident Opens.

(By United Press)

DICKERSON, Md. — The engineer of a Baltimore and Ohio railroad passenger train which crashed into the rear of another fast express and tossed cars from each into the path of a freight train was charged today with manslaughter.

At least 15 and possibly 20 persons were killed in the freak, three-train wreck. Three additional bodies were removed from the charred, twisted wreckage early today, bringing to 15 the number of bodies recovered. Five other persons remain unaccounted for and it is feared they were cremated in the fire that followed the crash.

State police estimated that 200 persons on the three trains were injured. Only 10 were hurt seriously enough to require hospitalization.

A warrant charging Raymond Rufus McClelland, of Baltimore, engineer of the B. & O.'s crack Diesel-engined "Ambassador," with manslaughter was issued last night by William D. Clark, justice of the peace at nearby Rockville, Md. McClelland was released in $3,000 bond after railroad officials promised to produce him for a hearing on Oct. 16.

McClelland's mechanic, John E. McCurdy, of Pittsburgh, was released on $200 bond as a material witness.

While railroad, state and federal officials, including Federal Bureau of Investigation officers, were investigating the wreck,

Flames consume the rear sleeping car of a Washington-bound B. & O. Cleveland express after it was rammed in the rear by the streamliner Ambassador, killing between 15 and 20 occupants. The tragedy occurred at Dickerson, Md., 35 miles from Washington, D. C.

Recapture Two Heights, Peril German Flank

Nazi Infiltration Attempt Fails as Reds Continue Forward Push to Save Stalingrad; Loss Set at 25,000 In Week.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Thrown on the defensive on Stalingrad's northwestern rim by the development of the Red army's flanking counter-attack, the Germans were reported today to have failed in fresh infiltration attempts against the city while battling desperately against the menace from the flank.

The epic battle centered like a consuming cyclone on the northwestern sector where the Russians had recaptured two dominating heights and nearby populated sections, according to today's Stalingrad dispatches.

(The German high command declared that its troops had taken "further fortified points in fierce street fighting" and, conceding the defensive nature of the fight on the flank, said "Soviet relief attacks against the northern barrier erected by German and Allied troops were repulsed in hard fighting.")

The Russian army newspaper Red Star declared that no other city in this war had been such a battlefield as Stalingrad. A military commentator quoted by Tass, official Russian news agency, said the Germans had lost more than 25,000 dead in the course of the last week.

"And Stalingrad is not the fortress which Verdun was," he added.

Red Star said German tanks were cruising the streets and alleys of Stalingrad, seeking to fall unexpectedly upon the Russian positions and demoralize the men holding them.

Despite this infiltration, it was said, the Russians were countering successfully, with anti-tank guns and grenades, generally holding their ground. One street running from the western edge of the city to the high cliffs along the Volga was attacked "scores of times" by German tank forces and tommy-gun shock troops—without avail.

A savage battle was indicated northwest of the city, where Russian planes, tanks, heavy artillery and foot troops have struck repeatedly into the Germans' left wing.

Field dispatches said Red army task forces had captured two hills and, in one sector, killed 900 Germans.

"German attacks were repulsed," the noon communique said.

Need for 90-Day Extension on Route 30-N Project Doubted

Two developments arose today to cast doubt on the need of a 90-day time extension asked by the Lombardo Brothers, Cleveland contractors, on the Route 30-N crossing elimination project.

One was the announcement from the Erie railroad that it would start within 10 days to relay its tracks over the overpass. Possible delay in getting the railroad's work under way had been advanced as one reason why an extension should be granted.

The other was the consensus of opinion by engineers that the job could be completed on time "given a fair break in the weather."

The project was started July 1, 1941 and, if a 90-day extension is allowed, it will have been in the process of construction for more than a year and a half. Reliable contractors and engineers say it could have been finished in nine months.

Engineers are at variance on whether or not the removal of equipment to other jobs has added just another delay to this project which vitally affects thousands of motorists of the Mansfield area and the entire country who normally use the national highway.

Vance T. Grimes, Ashland, state highway division engineer, declared today he had demanded that the contractors proceed immediately with the laying of pavement between the two railroads. Grimes said the Lombardo request for a 90-day extension has been tabled in his office.

"As an engineer, would you accept pavement laid in the cold months covered by the extension request?" Grimes was asked.

"Decidedly not, and the job can be completed on time if fair weather lasts and the Erie railroad can transfer their tracks to the overhead right-of-way," he replied

"Is the request being held up solely to be acted upon after the November election?" Grimes was asked.

"The election has no bearing on the matter, as specifications that any contractor, foreseeing possible

Rubber Union Pledges Backing In Inflation Fight.

AKRON — (INS) — Pledging "complete and unqualified support of all your anti-inflation program," the CIO-United Rubber Workers of America today urged President Roosevelt to veto the Steagall bill, passed by the house of representatives, raising parity price on farm prices, should the senate act favorably on it.

"We are alarmed by the house vote rejecting your program to stabilize our national economy and to protect us from the dangers of inflation," wired the rubber workers.

"This action by the house does not reflect the feeling of the country as a whole and we are confident that it does not represent the true attitude of the nation's farmers."

Jack Frost Bears Down as Mercury Goes Down to 30

Jack Frost has been nibbling at vegetation for the past week but he went to work in earnest last night and caused extensive damage to plants in the Mansfield area and northern Ohio as the mercury skidded to 30 degrees, a new season's, low.

The weatherman said the temperature will moderate a little today and tonight, but light frost is expected again tonight.

Garden crops, including tomatoes, beans, and squashes, were damaged in the Richland county area last night. Ohio State university farm experts said there was heavy damage to tomatoes and apples in northwest Ohio.

The 30-degree reading, two below freezing, was common through the northern half of the state this morning. Bucyrus, reporting a low of 30, said it was the coldest September morning in 14 years.

County Agent George B. Ganyard said he had received no reports of damage in farm districts this morning, but added that the frost "probably damaged a number of crops."

Fate - Root - Heath Officials Escape Serious Injuries In Train Crash.

Two officials of the Fate-Root-Heath company at Plymouth, injured early yesterday in a Baltimore and Ohio train wreck which killed 15 persons near Dickerson, Md., had been released from a hospital today and were resting in a Washington, D. C., hotel.

The injured men were Fred T. Buzard, vice president and general manager of the Plymouth firm, and J. T. Hogsett, the company's director of priorities. Both are about 48 and live in New London.

They left Willard Wednesday night for Washington on the Ambassador, crack Baltimore and Ohio train which crashed into the rear of the Cleveland Night express a short distance northwest of the national capital.

The rear pullman of the express was shoved into the side of a speeding freight train going in the opposite direction on the next track.

Office associates of the two Fate-Root-Heath officials learned in a telephone conversation with them last night that Buzard suf-

Support Plan to Establish Objectors' Camp at Mohican

Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield and representatives of four Mansfield organizations last night added their approval to a plan of the Muskingum Conservancy district to bring a conscientious objector camp to Mohican state park near Loudonville.

Meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at the suggestion of Bryce Browning, secretary of the conservancy district, the group agreed that a camp at the state park would provide free labor for the maintenance of the park and the further development of the district as a recreational center.

Attending the meeting were Bromfield, John Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce; Walter Beckley, representing the American Legion; Edwin Balyeat, secretary of the Junior Association of Commerce; Gordon Ensminger, president of the Richland County Fish and Game association, and George Hawkins, Bromfield's secretary.

Browning told The News-Journal today that he believes there is a good chance of getting the objectors' camp established in the abandoned CCC headquarters in the park if the communities surrounding the park show an interest in the proposal.

"The park has been neglected since the other camp was abandoned last spring and this is an opportunity for us to get a project that will benefit the entire area," Browning said.

Bromfield pointed out last night that labor is scarce and will be

Asserts City Would Be Ready For Blackout In Two Weeks

Mansfield civilian defense has been completely reorganized and would be prepared to stage a successful blackout in the next two weeks.

This was the word brought by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, civilian defense coordinator to the first mobilization rally of the Red Cross disaster preparedness and relief committee at South Park pavilion last night.

Pointing out that the city had been granted $30,000 worth of protective equipment because of its strategic position, Judge Kalbfleisch said it was up to units such as the disaster committee to inspire civilian defense leaders with the job they were pledged to do instead of permitting them to become influenced by apathy on the part of some of the people.

The judge spoke briefly because the meeting in the outdoor pavilion was cut short due to chilly weather. An almost 100 per cent attendance marked the rally which brought together for the first time close to 110 men and women named to divisions scheduled to handle rescue, transportation, first aid, food, shelter and communication during an emergency.

Robert Black, chairman of the committee, presided and introduced the 10 subdivision chairmen and their committees. Responsibilities of each division are set forth in a manual prepared by the county Red Cross office and copies of the manual were distributed to each person.

Atty. Marshall C. Moore, vice chairman of the committee, and Milo W. Hieber, former county chairman of the Red Cross, were other speakers.

Arm brassards to be worn in the event of an emergency were distributed along with the manuals and identification cards by the Red Cross Staff Assistance

Unfounded Gas Ration Rumors Cause Rush Here

Hundreds of Mansfield motorists, hearing a rumor that gasoline rationing was going to be thrust upon them without warning, last night jammed filling stations in the city area to fill the tanks in their cars.

The rush was a repetition of the experience of filling station operators in the Cleveland area Wednesday night when a rumor was widely circulated that rationing would begin at midnight Wednesday.

Cars were lined up at stations in Cleveland and Mansfield while puzzled attendants tried to supply all of them with gasoline. Proprietors admitted that business was good but they couldn't account for the rush.

Station owners said today that they have received no word of rationing and there won't be any until a rationing system is set up to handle the millions of applications for ration cards that will be filed by motorists in the middle west.

Nation-wide rationing is expected to start sometime this fall or early winter, but no date has been set and the rationing organization has not been completed.

SCARE: Japs Put Out Story Of Fleet Invading Atlantic

(By Associated Press)

Imperial Tokyo headquarters attempted to blow up a bubble-gum scare today with the announcement that Japanese naval forces are now operating in the Atlantic "in close cooperation with the Axis navies."

While Tokyo specifically mentioned only one Japanese submarine as having arrived in Atlantic waters, the German high command declared that "Japanese warships" had made contact with Axis forces in the Atlantic.

In London, British naval observers said any suggestion that Japanese surface raiders or heavy naval units might follow the lone submarine was "foolish."

These quarters said that the Japanese navy already had its hands full in the Pacific, and that the North and South Atlantic were too well guarded by Allied navies for a Japanese surface flotilla to enter those waters undetected.

British informants said it would not be difficult for Japan to send a submarine into the Atlantic, perhaps using Vichy-French Madagascar island as a refuelling base, but declared:

"If a 10,000-mile trip like that were carried out, it was undoubtedly done just for its propaganda value.

"It's like sending a delegate to an international conference—the Japanese just didn't want to be left out of an important battle area."

Other observers pointed out that if Japan actually had sent important naval forces into the Atlantic, she would be unlikely to destroy their surprise value by advertising the fact.

The Tokyo communique said:

"Part of the Japanese naval forces has advanced to the Atlantic and is now engaged in strategic operations in close cooperation with the Axis navies.

"One Japanese submarine operating in the Atlantic recently called at a certain German naval base and again set sail for strategic waters.

"Operations of the Japanese navy in the Atlantic with the Ger-

PROTEST: Hungarian Minister Quits, Defying Nazi Demands

(By United Press)

LONDON—Hungary's war minister has resigned after four years in office rather than co-operate in a German demand for more Hungarian troops for the Russian front and occupation forces in Jugoslavia, diplomatic quarters reported today.

Budapest admitted last night the resignation of War Minister Gen. Carl Bartha De Dalnokfalva "at his own request" and announced that Col-Gen. Wilhelm Nagy, retired, succeeded.

It was believed here that Bartha's resignation was directly due to urgent German demands on Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Italy for immediate reinforcements in troops, especially because of the frightful Axis casualties on the Russian front but also because of the seething situation throughout Yugoslavia where a patriot army has the initiative at many points.

Bartha, a graduate of the Austro-Hungarian military academy at Vienna, served through the last World war. He was an officer of the general staff for inspection of technical troops of Hungary from 1922 to 1932 and was chief of the military section of the ministry of defense from 1933 to 1938, when he became war minister.

Nagy, Bartha's successor, held various war ministry posts before he was made commander in chief of the first Hungarian army in 1940. He retired in 1941.

Hungary's situation had been increasingly troubled for weeks.

In diplomatic quarters, here there was a disposition to connect the deaths of Stephen Horthy, son and heir of Hungarian Regent Admiral Nicholas Horthy, and of Count Karolyi, the regent's son-in-law, with their opposition to Hungary's 100 per cent collaboration with the Axis—an implication that the airplane "accidents" in which they were killed were arranged by German or pro-German Hungarian agents.

RUSSIANS SCORE NEW ADVANCES AGAINST NAZIS

Report Additional Gains as They Battle Desperately To Save Ruined City.

The reformed defenses within Stalingrad were menaced for a time by a Nazi attack which overran a group of houses, but "Soviet troops counter-attacked and restored the situation," it was announced.

Russian street fighters were said to have killed more than 200 Germans and destroyed five tanks, seven anti-tank guns and four mortars in one of a series of engagements.

"In another sector," the communique said, "our mortar crews destroyed 12 trucks with troops and ammunition, set fire to three tanks and wiped out a battalion of enemy infantry."

Civilians of Stalingrad were reported to have poured out of their cellars, caves in the Volga cliffs and factory shelters and helped the Red army maintain its 31-day-old defense in streets, lanes and squares.

Thousands had been withdrawn across the river, but others refused to leave.

Unbroken by incessant bombing and tremendous ground assaults, the Russians battled on from wrecked buildings, barricades and dugouts.

Red army staff officers charted an active defense which carried the battle of Stalingrad into its second month and, temporarily at least, menaced a powerful segment of the siege lines.

(The Berlin radio hedged again on a declaration by German military quarters Sept. 15 that the battle was in the "final phase." It broadcast a dispatch that the high command preferred a gradual, systematic advance in order to save men and "the fall of the city may thus be delayed for some time.")

The midnight communique referred to the drive northwest of Stalingrad as "active operations" during which Soviet troops advanced somewhat in some sectors. The exact area and extent of the penetrations were not specified.

The Soviet information bureau said Russians "withdrew from a populated place" after tense fighting in the central Caucasus, but emphasized Nazi losses with a declaration that the fire of one Red army gun crew disabled 12 tanks and wiped out a company of German cavalry

"Stubborn engagements with the enemy" were noted in the Sinyavino area of the Volkhov front, where the Germans were said to be trying to drive a wedge into Russian positions.

The noon communique said of the Caucasian fighting.

"In the Mozdok area attacks by enemy tanks and automatic riflemen were repulsed We destroyed eight tanks and 15 trucks and killed about 200 German automatic riflemen. In another sector Soviet cavalry routed a battalion of Rumanian infantry

"Southeast of Novorossisk (on the Black sea coast) our troops fought fierce engagements. Men of one guards unit disabled four enemy tanks and wiped out about two companies of enemy infantry."

37 Planes Downed In Convoy Attack

LONDON —(UP)— The admiralty announced today that at least 37 German planes were destroyed in a two-day attack on an Arctic convoy early this month

The convoy was sighted by German planes and submarines Sept. 9, and the attack began three days later, a communique announced.

It said Allied carrier-borne naval air fighters and other planes and anti-aircraft guns destroyed 13 enemy planes and probably destroyed or damaged many others in fierce attacks Sept. 13

"At least 24 planes were destroyed Sept. 14," it said.

Hear Nazis Set October as Deadline

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Allied diplomatic sources here have received a copy of a recent speech by Dr. Albert Speer, Nazi minister of armaments and production, quoting him as saying:

"We must win this year by the end of October, when the Russian winter begins, or we will have lost once and for all

"We must win with the weapons we have now and not with those we will have next year.

"We can only win if every man capable of bearing arms is at the front and we must put all we have in the front line whether this is going to be deleterious to post war industry or not"

That statement, in addition to recent strenuous efforts of the German government to force labor and military strength in the occupied countries to join the Nazi war effort, stimulated belief here that Germany is faced with a growing shortage of manpower.

Estimate RAF Raid Cost 8,000 Lives

LONDON —(AP)— A Reuters dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, today quoted persons who survived the last heavy RAF attack on Karlsruhe as estimating that 8,000 to 10,000 residents of the city died in that assault.

According to reports of eyewitnesses, the dispatch said, at least two-thirds of Karlsruhe was either razed or so badly damaged that only the outlines of ruined buildings remain. Industrial areas were reported badly battered.

The city was last raided on Sept. 2.

German Supply Ship Hit By Allied Plane.

CAIRO—(AP)—British torpedo carrying aircraft damaged a large tanker escorted by destroyers northwest of Tobruk Wednesday night in another attack on German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's overseas supply lines, British headquarters announced today.

Air activity over the Egyptian battlefront yesterday was on a small scale, the bulletin said, and there was no noteworthy action on the part of opposing land forces.

The British acknowledged the loss of one plane, however, and reported the destruction of a German plane over Malta man navy, which are parallel to a German naval operation in the Indian ocean, are highly significant as they represent joint Japanese-Axis naval operations against the anti-Axis powers"

Meanwhile, British troops were overrunning French Madagascar to eliminate that 1,000-mile island, lying off the coast of southeast Africa, as a base for Axis undersea raiders preying on the vital Allied supply lanes to India, China, Russia and the Middle East.

In London, the foreign office announced that following the capture of Tananarive, the capital, British forces had placed Madagascar under military rule "to insure law and order . . . pending establishment of a friendly regime."

The Vichy French flag will continue to fly over the island, it was announced, and the sovereignty of France remains unaffected.

In the southwest Pacific, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced that Allied warplanes pressed home devastating new attacks on Japanese communication lines in the New Guinea battle zone and pounded enemy bases in New Britain, Timor and the Solomons islands.

American flying fortresses were officially credited with scoring a direct hit on an 8,000-ton Japanese cargo ship at Rabaul, New Britain, leaving it in flames.

Other Allied fliers set Japanese huts afire and strafed the airdrome at Kokoda, New Guinea, advance base for Japanese troops driving across the Owen Stanley mountains toward Port Moresby.

Gen. MacArthur's communique said there was no change in the general situation in the mountains, where the Japanese have been stalled for 10 days within 32 airline miles of Port Moresby.

Need for 90-Day Extension on Route 30-N Project Doubted

delay, must formally submit his reasons for an extension well before the fixed time for completion of a project," the division engineer replied

"Can the contractors actually complete the paving and open the highway before freezing weather?" he was asked

"Yes," Grimes replied, "the contractors have been ordered to lay the pavement between the two railroads at once and this is a week or 10-day job."

"Would you approve the extension request?" he was asked.

"The paving steel and structural steel was ordered when the job started July 1, 1941. The fabricating company was told by the government to defer filling the bridge steel order for 90 days but reinforcing steel for pavement has been on the job for months. I am willing to recommend the extension under the conditions," Grimes related.

"Was there any delay caused by a low wage scale?" was the next question.

"No," Grimes explained, "the wages fixed by the contract and established by the A. F. of L. have been adhered to or exceeded."

The division engineer, questioned about the transfer of heavy grading equipment from this job to other projects contracted for months after work had been started here, merely said:

"The government has got some of the equipment tied up at the Cleveland airport," but Grimes did not declare the transfer was made on mandatory orders of the war department.

R J Williams, resident engineer for the Cleveland contractors, reported today that the Erie railroad engineering department has advised him their tracks will be laid over the bridgework within 10 days

"This will require about two days and will make available about 10,000 cubic yards of dirt with which to complete the fill between the B. & O. and West Fourth street"

Asked when paving work would start, Williams said:

"We will begin pouring concrete about the middle of next week. With a break in the weather it is a four to six-weeks job. It may require two months.

Williams said considerable delay was caused by inability to hire welders to complete the Erie subway structure, one man carrying on this work where several were needed and would have been hired if available.

Ira Baker, Bucyrus, project engineer representing the federal highway department's interests, declared several days ago, without reservation, that transfer of equipment to Cleveland and Louisville jobs definitely has delayed the program here

Baker indicated that, in his opinion, only one lane could be completed before freezing weather and that the 90-day extension plea, would of necessity, have to cover a period starting with next spring's thaw and as a consequence inconvenience the motoring public during a great part of next summer.

BODIES OF 15 RECOVERED IN TRAIN DEBRIS

Maryland's state attorney, Ben G. Wilkinson, said "the evidence which has come to light, to my mind, indicates gross negligence and justifies this charge of manslaughter" against McClelland.

B. & O. officials at Baltimore said that although a preliminary investigation had been made, "no definite announcement of the cause of the wreck will probably be made for several days."

Rescue workers and wrecking crews worked through the night in search of more bodies and to clear the railroad's main line to the west. Since the accident occurred at 7:30 a. m., yesterday the double track line has been blocked. Officials hoped to have it opened for traffic today.

Only two of the dead have been identified They were J. M. Gilhart, Baltimore, flagman on the telescoped passenger train, and Clay P Ameral, a Brazilian who was believed to be connected with one of the numerous Brazilian military mission in this country.

Most of the bodies were burned so badly that finger print experts doubted that identification would be possible. All are at a Rockville funeral parlor.

The 10 persons injured who were taken to the City hospital, Frederick, D., were:

Philip Curran, 27, 429 McCully street, Pittsburgh, Pa., internal injuries and fractured arm. He is a nephew of CIO President Philip Murray.

Thomas Rogers, 16, Devonshire street, Pittsburgh, brain concussion and burns, condition critical

Vincent F. Smith, Gates Mills, O, brain consusions and chest injuries

Mrs. Anne Van Hamersveld, 3280 Silsby road, Cleveland Heights, O., spine injury.

John Van Hamersveld, her husband, minor injuries.

Theodore Sproull, 56, Mabren, O., slight brain concussion

Vincent Sweeney, 42, Pittsburgh, chest injuries

James Straub, 43, Pittsburgh, injuries to right shoulder and hip

Rogers' young brother, Donald, is missing.

The B & O.'s No. 18—night express bound eastward from Cleveland to Washington—halted on a grade to make some minor engine repair. When the repair was made, Flagman Gilhart, who had been sent back to signal any oncoming trains, climbed on board and the tram got underway Before it had gathered speed, however, the B & O's crack "Ambassador," Detroit-to-Washington passenger train, following No 18 on the same track, plowed into it.

The impact telescoped No 18's rear Pullman, with 21 passengers aboard, and threw it onto an adjacent track The Ambassador's locomotive and baggage car were overturned A freight train, hurtling along in the opposite direction —westward — smashed into the wreckage which caught fire.

ASHLAND PLANS SALVAGE DRIVE

School Children to Aid as Committee Prepares For Centers Over County.

ASHLAND — H. L. Hess, new chairman of the Ashland County Salvage committee, and members of his committee are completing plans for an all-county collection of scrap metal to be made Oct. 12 and 14.

Collection centers are to be set up throughout the county and county organizations will be asked to assist in the collection. Organizations which sponsor a collection center will receive the money from the sale of scrap from their own collection centers.

The county collection will be on Oct. 12 and the city drive Oct. 14. In rural communities where a person has more scrap than he can haul to the collection center arrangements will be made to have it hauled.

School children will assist in the collection in Ashland city, making two calls at every home, one on Oct. 7 to inform people of the drive and one on Oct. 13 to remind them that the trucks will be around on the following day. Scrap metal in the city is to be placed at the street curbing unless it is a large amount in which case these persons should contact Mr. Hess or the county commissioners.

One-half of the money from the city collection will go to the war chest of the community fund and the other half to the city's next Red Cross drive.

City, county and state trucks and some privately owned trucks will be used in the collections. If preferred, the scrap may be sold directly to a dealer rather than donated. Iron, steel, rubber, burlap, brass, copper and all other forms of metal are to be collected. No request has yet been made in this county for tin and tin cans.

Culminating the visit of Betty Ross, national field staff visitor from the Girl Scout headquarters in New York, plans are being laid in Galion for the organization of a Girl Scout association in Galion.

Prior to this time there has been no central organization of the lone troops now containing about 150 girls on their membership rolls.

Appointed on the steering committee for outlining the plans are Mrs. James Robinson, Mrs. Floris Arnold, Florence Belle Shaw, Mrs. Carrie Diesem, Mrs. Sarah Beagle, and Mrs. Kelse Poister. Members from the community at large are Mrs. M. D. Bonsteel, Mrs. James Angell, and Mrs. G. A. Berting. Miss Ross plants to return to Galion in November to complete the organization chatter of the local group.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1942.

We are going to lose the war unless we very quickly develop and use the overwhelming strength that free men have when they are completely united and completely in earnest.—Donald M. Nelson.

A British writer says that Hitler "has indirectly saved Britain from decay"—which seems to follow the optimistic idea of seeing some good in everything.

Considering the rubber shortage, and all, it must be quite a problem for officers to decide whether to file a speeding charge or a lunacy affidavit against a motorist driving at 100 miles an hour on a public highway.

Rushing Toward Disastrous Inflation

EFFORTS of President Roosevelt and congress to ward off inflation will continue to be futile as long as wages are permitted to mount, under sanction of the War Labor Board, or because of competition due to shortage of workers suited to fill jobs in war industries.

With only a few more days before the October 1 deadline set by the president, congress is fumbling with a bill which gives little promise of either meeting the president's requirements or having any anti-inflation effect.

A majority of farmers, it is asserted, are not asking for higher prices—they merely want the prices they receive for their products to be proportionate to the cost of things they must buy—and this seems quite reasonable.

In order to accomplish this it would appear inescapable that wages paid for farm work should be included in establishing "parity"—and, in securing competent farm workers it is necessary to compete with the high wages being paid industrial workers and rising wage scales in other fields of employment.

It is not entirely clear why farm employment, with its hard work, longer hours and requirements for knowledge of agricultural processes, should be considered less entitled to high wages than jobs in industry and this may be one of the adjustments that will have to be made in order to maintain production of the nation's food supply—which is a first essential of either peace or war.

As matters stand now the United States is rushing toward an era of unbridled inflation (prohibitory prices) which, unless intelligently and fearlessly handled by the administration, will result in individual bankruptcy for millions of people and eventual national disaster.

The key to the whole thing, as recognized but not acted upon, is the upward jump in wages—which constitute from 90 to 100 per cent of all production expense of items that enter into the cost of living.

In fairness to the farmers, if they are unable to secure competent help at less than $50, or $75 or $100 a week—as farm labor is being drained away by war industries—then "parity" should be considered on this basis.

There can be no effective "price ceilings" on anything until a fair ceiling is established on wages—for costs cannot be permitted to be higher than selling prices if the distribution of commodities is to continue.

Should Bumpers Be Scrapped?

LATEST SUGGESTION for adding to the scrap metal heap is that the fifty million bumpers on the nation's twenty-five million cars should be taken off and junked.

But here's another thing about which it is best to not act hastily. There are still untapped reservoirs of scrap metal that serves no useful purpose which should be called in before the protection of bumpers is sacrificed—and if SOME cars are to be bumperless ALL should be.

The bumpers, to be sure, have been overdone in the lavish American way. They have become unnecessarily large and heavy, and what was first meant merely for protection has become an ornamental mass almost as lavish as the weird grills on the front of a car.

These grills themselves represent an outlay of metal and labor that probably serves no useful or esthetic purpose. Still, tearing them off would badly mutilate the car. They might be left on for people to look at during the next few years, as examples of what designers can do when told to go ahead regardless of expense or taste.

By the time this war is over, the public may be able to get automobiles with less front and more car per pound, and fewer jimcracks to get banged up and out of order. Also with form having more relation to function than has been the case in recent years.

Bombs and Blockades Similar

BREMEN has just been bombed for the one hundredth time. According to the last census it had a population of 342,000. Houston, Seattle, Denver and Rochester are comparable American cities. For a town of this size a hundred bombings must mean one of two things. Either nothing much can be left of the place, or the bombing has not been very effective.

Probably the latter is true, however disappointing it may sound. English experience showed that a great deal of destruction can take place in a town without weakening it essentially. Chasms in streets, holes in vacant lots, smashed buildings may mar the surface of a city without vitally affecting its industrial life.

As a means of winning a war, bombing is something like a blockade. At first sight they seem very different. Bombing is quick and violent, whereas a blockade works slowly and for the most part invisibly. Yet in the long run they are alike in this—either may win the war, but either will require a long time to do so.

Majority Favors 'Tithing' Plan

A GALLUP poll shows a majority of American voters in favor of paying a dime out of every dollar for war savings bonds and stamps. They think all people with incomes, whether in wages, salaries or other forms, should do this.

Such "tithing" is not only patriotic, it is perhaps the easiest way there is to save money. The price paid is not spent; it is kept by the safest custodian on earth.—the United States government. And it "works while you sleep" by accumulating interest. Millions of Americans will be glad, when the war is won, that they have taken advantage of this method of saving money.

Youthful Mickey Rooney's youthful wife charges him with mental cruelty—but it may be no more than manifestation of the egocentricity which could scarcely have escaped her earlier notice.

THE HOME FRONT INFLATION BATTLE

Jap Behavior Baffles Observer

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — All news relative to Jap activities of today represents the islanders (and represents 'em absolutely correctly, I haven't a shadow of a doubt) as exactly opposite to the kind of folk I took 'em to be during a couple of years' residence in their midst, as an American news correspondent, once on a time.

It was a long while ago, it's true, but not long enough for a nationality to go through the processes of so fundamental a change in character as that one appears to have undergone in the intervening period. Evidently I was mistaken initially, but certainly it was the most completely-100 per cent mistake that I ever made on any subject.

The Yankee news service I represented had an information-swapping arrangement with what was known as the Nippon Dempo Tsusinsha, meaning the Japan Telegraph News Agency. At its head was an old Jap named Mitzunaga, who has been mentioned in dispatches from the Orient of late.

The welcome I got from that outfit was something to warm the human heart. Director Mitzunaga couldn't speak English, to be sure, but his foreign editor, Ryonasuke Seita, educated in an American university, was assigned to care for me.

I wanted interviews with high muck-a-mucks—cabinet members and such. I'd only to express such a wish and a messenger would arrive with a note, written in hen-tracks, cordially inviting me to drop in. Editor Seita would translate the hen-tracks for me, and, if the sought-for potentate was unfamiliar with English, would be on hand to act as interpreter, or would assign to the job his assistant, Sub-Editor Ooeda.

Complete Co-operation.

And, believe me, those cabineteers were communicative. I would not guarantee that they always told the truth, but they were a darned sight more polite than the average functionary in Washington.

It wasn't solely a matter of business, either.

My wife was with me, and the Seitas the Mitzunagas and the Ooedas were families of their own. We entertained back and forth. I never saw anyone in the United States whom I liked better than the Seitas. Had war broken out then, I'd no more have suspected that pair of an inclination to torture me, as an internee, than I'd have anticipated such an inclination on the part of any of my friendly neighbors here at home.

And (dash-ding it!) I doubt that they'd have had it.

My theory is that the torturers are that infernal Jap military class, who run things regardless of the comparatively civilized civilian element. I just can't believe it of folks I knew so well and liked so much.

There's a trickiness in the Jap make-up, but, if that imitation was pure trickiness, it was a wonder.

They fool you in another way.

The dope has been that Jap ingenuity has been deceptive. It's agreed that the islanders are good imitators. The Japanese have built ships and planes and other mechanical devices that have looked all right on paper, but the theory's been that they wouldn't work very well in practice. They appear to work pretty blamed well.

Don't times change?

Young's New Book

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

JIMMY YOUNG has struck another "jackpot." You'll remember his first book, "Behind the Rising Sun." We reviewed it in this column. It was the first shocking revelation of what may happen to a white American in yellow Asia. Jimmy learned that lesson the hard way, after being interned for weeks in a Japanese prison under Japanese torture, because he had dared to reveal what was happening to the Chinese.

Now he has written this smaller book, "Our Enemy," published by David McKay, Philadelphia, which packs as much dynamite in one paragraph as the other book did in a page. It's a depth bomb, this 25-cent volume. And it's a bomb every American should face in all its terrible truth.

America is at war with Japan. But the average American knows nothing about Japan or the Japanese. He has seen pretty picture postcards of geisha girls and flowering cherry trees. And these picture postcards are true. They reveal one side of Japanese life. They reveal that love of beauty which is essentially a part of the Japanese people. But they do not reveal the nature of the militaristic hoodlums who have seized and corrupted the Japanese government until it has become a menace to the whole western world.

It is hard for us to understand this. It is particularly hard for Californians to whom the Japanese for years have been friends and fellow workers, trusted and beloved. And in California, now, thousands of first and second generation Japanese are interned, gray-faced, heart-sick, and innocent, yet condemned because of the treason in their native land.

Yet it is true. Jimmy Young, in all his years in Japan as I.N.S. correspondent and editor, also knew and loved many Japanese. They were his friends in days of peace. They helped him in his darkest hours, although many did so at the price of their own heads. Yet neither he nor they could deny that a foul spirit had engulfed them. And it is the story of this foul spirit which Jimmy has written in that potent little book, "Our Enemy," a record which neither he nor any Japanese friend would deny, and which every American should read if he wishes to be acquainted with the beginning of the "Yellow Peril."

There's one chapter in particular, Chapter 9, called "The Black Smoke of Japan." It's the story of how Japan is using the insidious hell of opium to weaken, debauch and demoralize the Chinese people. It is only a fragment of the multitudinous methods by which Japan is using to demoralize the white race. Superficially it does not seem to touch the horrors of torture and obscenity which are openly revealed. But if you have ever seen anyone in the grip of "the black smoke," in its swift and inevitable agony, this chapter will rouse in you a realization and hate of our Pacific peril which no other can.

For years China had known and fought the fearful menace of opium. Rich people, comfortable people, can easily disdain opium. But to those who live always on the edge of poverty, disease and despair, opium has an overwhelming allure. It leads to dreams and escape. It also leads to dishonor and death, but its victims seldom suspect that—at first. The Japanese knew this fact, however. The Japanese military party knew that opium was infinitely more potent in demoralizing the enemy than the sharpest sword, the most powerful gun. And so, secretly but swiftly, they flooded China again with the drug that drains men's souls of hope and honor.

It's a horrible chapter, that Chapter 9 in Jimmy Young's revelation of "Our Enemy," yet I think it sums up all the cruelty, the ruthlessness and secret viciousness which we are fighting today—the "Black Smoke" of Japan, that did more to undo the strength of China than any other weapon. Reading it I wonder if we ourselves, the free whites of America, are not also undone by the "Black Smoke" of apathy and ignorance, complacency and indifference. Like the Chinese, we too thought that the little yellow men could never conquer us by their strength.

BUT CAN THEY, PERHAPS, CONQUER US MORE TERRIBLY BY OUR WEAKNESS AND INDOLENCE?

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, Sept. 25, 1922.

Four homes were destroyed, two persons injured and a score left homeless by a fire in the village of Windsor, five miles northeast of Mansfield.

Frank C. Poling, governor of the Ohio district of Kiwanis clubs, was speaker at state convention held in Cincinnati.

Birth report: Daugher born to Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bond, Parkwood boulevard.

H. R. Fiedler, 95 Lexington avenue, underwent operation at Eleanor Thomas sanitarium.

Mrs. W. K. Ackerman and Mrs. W. F. Grossman went to Canton to attend convention of Pythian sisters.

S. A. Premer, 53 High street, was fatally injured while at work at steel plant.

Charles H. Sword went to Ann Arbor to enter University of Michigan.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Having set forth in early September, 1513, a 20-day march through snarled tropical jungle of the Darien Isthmus brought Vasco de Balboa and his band of Spanish and Indian guides to the top of a mountain from which he first looked upon the waters of the Pacific ocean on this date. Balboa called the water the Mar del Sur, or the South Sea.

Old Squabbles Flaring Once More To Disturb Hitler's Balkan Set-Up

—By FREDERICK C. OECHSNER

THE PERSISTENT REPORT that Hitler and Mussolini will meet with Balkan leaders at Vienna shortly to deal with new problems in southeastern Europe brings up the role of the small satellite nations under Nazi "leadership."

The problems must be relatively acute to make Hitler leave his headquarters when, directly responsible for the success and morale of the German armed forces after Brauchitsch's dismissal, he should be tending the fire at Stalingrad.

But there are many snarls in the setup of the small minion nations like Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Finland, which can embarrass and even endanger Hitler's conduct of the war. They are not subjugated and occupied countries as are France, Belgium and Poland. They must be kept in line and kept contributing politically, militarily and economically. Sometimes they get restive.

* * *

BY MEANS of token forces, Germany has been able to keep the southeastern satellites disciplined. Principally they are joined to the Axis through adherence to pacts like the anti-comintern or the 'three-power agreements. If the symbolical duty to save Europe from bolshevism or Jewish-democratic plutocracy is not enough of an incentive to go on fighting with Hitler, the promise of an adjustment of all frontier and territorial difficulties (at the enemy's expense) often works better.

But, what with Hitler's new Europe becoming less of a certainty, classic old squabbles are flaring up again, like the Hungarian-Rumanian dispute over Transylvania which, not much over a year ago, Foreign Ministers Ribbentrop of Germany and Ciano of Italy patched up with fine imperious gestures at the Vienna conference. Things are becoming unstuck in Macedonia, with sharp local disturbances. And United Nations agents (principally Russian) still are finding ways of keeping these issues alive.

* * *

ONE THING which showed me the spirit, or lack of it, behind the whole Nazi-leadership setup was the withdrawal of the Rumanian troops for rest and recovery after the fall of Odessa. It was Rumanians principally who besieged Odessa with the telling aid of German Stukas, and it was to them that it finally fell. Rumanian prestige had been vindicated and it was an occasion for great rejoicing.

The "victorious" army which I saw on the roads leading west to bed, baths and food, a few days after the fall of the city, did not, however, look spruce or even happy. It looked plain disgusted and fed up, a dirty-footsore, weary and demoralized mob, ambling along in a stupor. Many of them were barefoot. None of them looked well fed.

All of this could have been surface impression and without political significance. But that was not true of the Rumanian general of the garrison with whom I talked at Otchakov on the Black sea, or of the Rumanian surgeon at whose small base hospital I spent the night at Tiraspol.

Said the general with elaborate casualness, "Well, we feel that we have attained our main strategic objectives now; we will rest on the line which we now hold. A token Rumanian force has gone ahead to help the Germans in the Crimea." He seemed as glad as did his troops that it was over.

It will be part of Hitler's and Mussolini's work at Vienna, if they do meet, to whip up new "enthusiasm" for the war. Stalingrad won't help them much in that.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Mohandas Gandhi's personal popularity in this capital is so low he'd have to chin himself to touch bottom, but his influence has brought out one of the most interesting personalities to hit town in a dog's age.

Sirdar J. J. Singh is an Indian textile importer who has lived 17 years in New York. He's president of the India League of America and an ex-member of Gandhi's movement.

Dramatically handsome and built like a varsity tackle, he's visibly affected when he talks of his homeland.

Singh came here to plead for American aid in settlement of the Indian crisis. He's admittedly scared stiff of consequences if Japan succeeds in grabbing India. Incidentally, he's the first to champion Jawaharlal Nehru and Gandhi here, and he makes some telling points in asking for understanding.

* * *

JAPAN, Singh reports, has made great headway in India with propaganda deriding the Churchill-Roosevelt "four freedoms." Japan has cleverly harped on the theme that the four freedoms are only for white men in Anglo-British minds, and that India will never be freed by Britain.

Failure of Sir Stafford Cripps' mission appeared to give point to the Jap claims, and a wave of "So what?" defeatism swept India after Cripps returned home.

"The cobbler, the peasant, the little shopkeeper—they do not see how fatal a Jap victory would be," Singh says passionately. "They only see that another hope of independence is smashed. So they say 'Why fight for freedom we haven't got?'"

Jailing of Gandhi and Nehru plays into the Japs hands, Singh contends, and they are the only Indian leaders who could counteract the Jap propaganda but they can't do it from jail. Singh explained the Gandhi-Nehru demands on Britain not as blackmail but as a move forced by the Indian masses. Jap agents would have claimed they were "selling out" to the British had they not demanded immediate action.

* * *

SINGH bitterly assails any suggestion that Gandhi and Nehru are pro-Axis. They are inviolably democratic, he says, and points to Nehru's record as the first world leader to denounce Jap aggression in China, the Italian move in Abyssinia and the fascist attack on Spain in support of his claims. In contrast, he points out that L. S. Amery, British secretary for India, defended the Jap invasion of Manchuria in the house of commons in 1931.

Singh brought with him a plan for the U. S. state department which he says Gandhi would accept. It's simple. First, a gentleman's agreement that the veto power of the Indian viceroy will not be used during the war. Second, a guarantee of Indian freedom after the war.

Third, replacement of the present government council by an interim government of 15 members, five to be Indian Moslems, five to be Indian Nationalists and five to be named by the viceroy.

"America should insist on a settlement of the Indian crisis," Singh says. "America has a big stake in it. If India is allowed to go by default because her people have nothing to fight for, American boys now playing in the streets will grow up to find the country still fighting Japan."

NEW YORK — Voice teachers around the country believe that Margo has the best voice on the air. It is the "most friendly and warming." Margo is an actress-dancer-singer who was born in Mexico and who is a kinswoman of that fine caricaturist and rumba-tango-bolero bandsman, Xavier Cugat. It was Margo who teamed so well with Burgess Meredith in Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset," a drama that was awarded the Pulitzer Prize. Where is Margo now? Here in New York. She's featured on one of the big broadcasts with Lanny Ross.

IT HAD to happen sometime. Phil Baker, a southpaw, cracked his finger and now has to play his accordion right-handed. First time he's been bothered that way in 20 years. Speaking of lefties and righties. I know a left-handed comic strip artist (Milton Caniff) who has labored long and hard against just such an emergency. If anything should happen to his left hand, he'd be able to go right ahead with his right. He does all his writing with his right hand anyway.

One of the neatest similes in current news writing bobbed up in a column by DeWitt Mackenzie . . . In discussing Wendell Willkie's mission abroad Mackenzie commented, "As a matter of fact, the big chap has been traveling like a tracer-bullet." You couldn't ask for anything better than that.

EVEN as a prophet, a talent scout is not without honor, save on Broadway . . . Let's take the case of Ben Boyar as a horrible example. Mr. B is supposed to recognize talent when he sees it. That's what he's paid for. The other day a young man slipped into the offices of Max Gordon and applied for a job in "Junior Miss."

"I'm Burton Moyar," he said.

"Any kin to Ben Boyar?,'

"Yes, sir. he's my father."

"Tell your dad I said to give you a contract," said Max Gordon, "and tell him a talent scout is without honor in his own family."

"I hope I'll be able to live this down at home," murmured young Boyar as he moved off in search of his dad.

A Farmer's Diary

Enjoy Yourself!

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A MAN named Edward Yeomans wrote a book for thoughtful people, entitled "Shackled Youth." One sentence which impressed me much was this: "The truth of every subject taught is the Emotion and Music at the center of it; and the fact about life is that we miss it all if we miss the joy."

And where, you ask, shall a person find JOY in times like these? Well, what are senses for? The person who cannot find it—feel it, hear it, smell it, taste it, see it—might as well live underground.

Go alone into the woods, and sit quietly, unmoving until you become a part of the trees and the small wild sounds and the blue shrouded hills. Your spirits will rise.

Watch the waterfalls, watch the cloud shadows shift over fallowed fields, feel the wind on your face—and the deep surge of ebbing life that is going out from the autumn landscape "crying aloud with color" will surge through your consciousness and leave good earthy joy.

Watch a child at play. See him raptly gaze at two fighting spiders, who are claiming the same web. Watch him chase a butterfly. See him step, barefoot upon a thistle—and feel with him as he stops and earnestly searches out the offending "jagger" from the sole of his little tanned foot.

Eat a savory meal from the garden—for most every garden is at its best. Golden brown sweet potatoes, sliced beefsteak tomatoes, corn on the cob; carrots and cabbage in a crisp crunchy salad; buttered beets; creamed turnips—ripe golden cantaloupe, or juicy red watermelon.

Joy is where you find it—everyone has his own special brand. You may get yours from the sweep of a swallow's wing; from the feel of the saddle and the response of your favorite horse to your touch on the reins; from the sight of a field well plowed, or a barn newly painted; a long cord of wood—a pile of coal in the cellar.

Joy is in homes where service stars glow in the windows—for not all joy is laughter. Deep abiding joy comes from "doing the little more" . . . from beauty of form, from sweet music, from giving one's self to a cause that is nobly worth while.

A man named Rodin carved a piece of marble into a hand—"the Hand of God." Within the hand lies curled a human figure, as in a nest.

A man named Cowper wrote a hymn—a hymn of joy.

"God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform;
He plants His footsteps in the sea
And rides upon the storm."

SYNOPSIS

Christmas dinner at the home of her widowed mother, Edith Graves, is not a happy occasion for Temple, an intelligent young woman, because tomorrow she will leave for Washington to take a job obtained for her by a Senator, who was a friend of her father's. Samuel Graves had died suddenly a year ago; his investments were worthless; this had compelled Temple to cut short her college education and enter a business school, which she detested. Temple lives in a college town. At the dinner are Edith's only son, Ron; his wife, Frances, a wealthy and selfish girl; their young son, Ronnie; Edith's daughter, Allison, 9, and Edith's mother, Mrs. Hallett. It is about a year before the United States entered the war. When Mrs. Hallett speaks ruefully about the plight of the people in Europe, Ron, affable and handsome, asks her to stop dwelling on that subject. Ron is vice president in the concern owned by Frances' father, and inclined to take things easy since his marriage. Temple has an appointment with Dr. Harry McCormick, a brilliant chemistry instructor, who is much sought after by the girls. Until today he and Temple had been casual acquaintances. Heretofore, he had been condescending. But tonight McCormick shows a marked interest in Temple. Presently he tells her the entrance of the United States in the war is inevitable and that he has decided to enlist. On the train she becomes acquainted with Mrs. Paula Wayne, apparently a woman of importance. In Washington she is met by Abby Booth, the Senator's secretary.

CHAPTER IV

In the taxi Abby said, "I know you are anxious to see the city and I'll borrow a car this week-end and take you around. It's too bad you had to leave the day after Christmas, but it's wiser to get settled and know your way around a little before starting a job. I thought I'd never adjust myself. I was terribly homesick . . . I'll have to leave you at the house and get back to the office. But I'll see you tonight at dinner and introduce you to the other people." She smiled. "I have most of my evenings free now. You see, the boy I'm engaged to is in the service. Luckily, he's stationed rather close by and can get leave most week-ends."

Temple said, "A good many engaged couples are getting married now." She wondered whether the boy had told Abby that she had beautiful teeth and eyes.

Abby nodded gravely. "Yes, I know. But I think it is harder to give up a husband than a sweetheart. That's why Miles and I are waiting."

The boarding house was like no other Temple had ever seen or imagined. It was a fine old town house with a broad staircase and crystal chandeliers and richly carpeted floors. The sitting-room, which she passed on the second floor as she followed Mrs. Benson, the "hostess" to the third floor, was huge and handsomely furnished, with deep divans, a piano, several tables and lamps and heavy silk draperies at the broad windows.

"Your room," Mrs. Benson said in a brisk, professional manner and opened a door.

* * *

Temple entered, feeling instantly the warmth and light and cheerfulness of the room. Bright chintz covered the daybed and draped the one long window. An old dresser had been painted white, and a clear round mirror had been placed above it. There was also a reading lamp over a deep comfortable-looking chair. White bookcases had been built along one side of the wall. On closer inspection she would know that the room held only a collection of old odd pieces made cheerful with paint and chintz; but in this moment of feeling cold and strange nothing was better than a room she could call her own again.

Mrs. Benson smiled her professional smile which did not linger a moment longer than was necessary. "Your breakfast and dinner are included in the fee. You understand that. And now I believe that's all."

Temple looked at the closed door. "No, that's not all," she thought as she pulled off her brown hat slowly, her thick dark hair falling into its accustomed wave. "It hasn't even begun" . . . All at once she was afraid that she was going to cry, not from fear or loneliness, but from sheer anger at circumstances that had thrust her hundreds of miles from faces and things familiar and dear. She thought, "I'm glad I didn't leave a boy I was in love with. I wouldn't be like Abby Booth. I'd have married him."

* * *

For the next three days she met the people in the house and saw Washington. On the first evening when she had gone down to dinner with Abby, she had met Marjorie Keefer and Merritt Brown who sat at the table where, from that night on, Temple would have a place. They were both government employes and their cordiality was only slightly less than Abby's.

She began to learn the tempo of the house, the rise and ebb of voices as the people went down to breakfast and left for the day and their return in the evening and the quiet after they left for the evening's relaxation. After two days of idleness except for sightseeing she felt herself growing anxious to be among those going out in the mornings and returning in the evening.

On Saturday evening she met Miles Campbell who was the sort of boy she had suspected Abby was in love with—tall and thin and dark, quiet-looking and undistinguished in his uniform.

"Abby has been wonderful to me," Temple told him.

He said self-consciously, "Abby is wonderful to everybody."

The house was alive with activity then—people coming and going and meeting, their voices mingling. Half an hour later it was quiet.

On Monday morning she was only one among thousands reporting for work, only one among thousands glimpsed briefly on the street before a white building received her. She went in alone, presented a letter and found herself some minutes later sitting at a desk in a huge room filled with desks and people.

A girl no older than she gave her typing to do and explained some figures. "This is business," she thought as her fingers, numb at first began to move quickly over the keys. "This is business, this typing and these figures that mean nothing to me. I hate it."

Only once during that morning did she glance up and look around. A girl smiled at her.

That noon she went out and had luncheon at a drug store counter and decided that she had been too courteous in not speaking up and saying she was next in line to be served.

She came into the house with the others that night and left in the morning with them. She was one of them now.

* * *

Temple had been in Washington two weeks when Paula Wayne telephoned her. The telephone, an old-fashioned one attached to the wall in the hall, was a subject of much derision and scorn since even the most personal conversations could be heard in every room on the floor.

"Temple?" Paula Wayne asked in her deep, nervous voice. "Hello, dear! My secretary has been searching Washington for you. I'm glad you gave me a slight hint as to the sort of house you're living in. I've been thinking about you and wondering how you are getting on."

Temple said, "Well, I hope I'm going to like it." That, at least was true.

"Of course you will. But the reason why I'm calling . . . There will be some people here Saturday afternoon. Not a party, but a few people and a few young people. It all came about on New Year's Eve, but I won't go into that. Will you come?"

"Why, yes, I'd love to come."

Paula laughed her short, brittle laugh. "Your hesitancy . . . The Puritan upbringing. I suspect, which makes you suspicious of chance acquaintances. Keep on being like that! I am probably a nuisance in your young life, but I like to look at you and my unused maternal instinct has been bothering me when I thought of you." She laughed again. "Don't pay any attention to me. Come on Saturday around 5:30 and have fun. Good night, my dear."

"She leaves you breathless," Temple thought. She was smiling when she went back to her room where Abby was waiting for her.

"I heard," Abby said. "I couldn't help it. Mrs. Wayne . . ."

Temple had told Abby about Paula Wayne, and Abby had said that Paula was one of the most famous hostesses in the Capitol.

"That will be fun," Abby said, referring to the invitation. "But don't you wonder about women like that—women who live in expensive apartments and entertain constantly and dress beautifully? Their beginnings are obscure; they are obviously married, but there are no husbands about. They are rich, but you never know the source of their money. I've seen lots of them. They are not beautiful women usually."

She shook her head. She looked tired and sensible and pitifully plain.

"They used to say that anything could happen in New York. Now they say it about Washington. The life here gets in your blood, too. You probably won't have to worry about your social life after Saturday, Temple."

Temple smiled, "I could have stayed home a hundred years and never met anyone like her." She thought, "I hope I'm not being unfair, but I think I'm a novelty to Paula Wayne."

Abby said: "She has a reputation for being a very generous woman, generous with herself, but not with her money. Oh, you know how those stories get around among the rank and file. Gossip only, probably. They say that Mrs. Wayne will never loan anyone money, that she's the stingiest woman in Washington."

Stretching her short arms over her head she laughed. "It will be all over some day, our little part in the Washington picture. We're nearly all transients here, you know . . . I'm so tired. I can close my eyes and still hear the telephone in the office. Everyone who comes in wants something."

At the door she paused, glanced back and smiled. "You told Mrs. Wayne you hoped to like it here, Temple. Don't you? Is it really that bad?"

SAVE THOSE OLD X-RAY HOLDERS

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— X-ray specialists can contribute to the national rubber salvage campaign by following suggestions made by Floyd W. Traylor, dentist of Boonville, Ind., who recently wrote to the Petroleum Industry War council pointing out that rubber holders in which dental X-ray plates are packed contain considerable high quality rubber. According to Traylor, these small squares of rubber used by all X-ray specialists and virtually all hospitals are thrown away by the thousands each month.

'COMING BATTLE OF GERMANY' IN NEW BOOK LIST

Strategy of Air Warfare and Attack Technique Related By Authority.

The strategy of aerial warfare and its supporting attack techniques is discussed in "The Coming Battle of Germany," William B. Ziff's new book now in circulation at Mansfield Public Library.

An aviation authority, Ziff has recently returned from a three months' study of aerial warfare as the guest of the British air ministry. His treatise shows what such warfare costs in money, energy and materials and the exact style of organization involved.

Howard Smith, author of LAST TRAIN FROM BERLIN, is a former Berlin correspondent for C. B. S. and has spent six years in Germany. His book, a careful, analytical study of the state of the Nazi home-front, as a result of the Russo-German war, deals, in particular, with conditions in the winter of 1941-42, and the nation's attitude toward the Nazi party and Hitler.

GET THEE BEHIND ME by Hartzell Spence is a candid and continuously entertaining description of what life is like to youngsters reared in the shade of the pulpit. It is told with the same light, anecdotal humor that made "One Foot in Heaven" a best seller.

DESERT WAR by Russell Hill is an account of the great battles of Libya and Egypt—up to the present battle of the summer of 1942—with an explanation of the nature and the methods of desert warfare. Mr. Hill, the Cairo correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, previously worked with William Shirer in Berlin. In Africa he has been in the thick of actual fighting, and his book is especially enlightening and timely.

Other non-fiction: THE ARMY WOMAN'S HANDBOOK by Collins; CAMPAIGN OF TREACHERY by Torres; HOW WAR CAME by Davis and Lindley; BRIDGES AND THEIR BUILDERS by Steinman and Watson; CALLING ALL WOMEN by Ayling; VAN LOON'S LIVES by Van Loon; LATIN KEY TO BETTER ENGLISH by Hart and Lejeune; LETTERS TO A SOLDIER by Seaton; PHOTOGRAPHY FOR COMMERCE by Holmes; LETTERING by Cavanaugh.

THE CUP AND THE SWORD by Alice Tisdale Hobart is an American story set against the unique and fascinating California wine industry. Against this background, and spanning the time between two wars, she tells the story of Jean Phillippe Rambeau and his closely-knit family—carrying it through four generations—showing, particularly, how the cynicism and materialism of the post-war generation are changed by work into a new spiritual understanding.

FOLLOW THE LEADER by Clyde Brion Davis is the story of Charles Martel, son of a strong-willed woman who resented her husband's mediocrity and concentrated this will on making a career for her son. As he rose to fame, his gentle, weak personality faded, and he became more aggressive and more objectionable until, at the end of the book, when it is hinted that he will be a presidential candidate in 1944, he is completely self-centered and ruthless.

TORY TAVERN by Henry Barnard Safford is the story of Roger Langslieve, son of a Tory minded father, who is impressed into the British navy and, while abroad, meets Colonel Ethan Allen from whom he hears of the American Revolution. He contrives to escape, becomes a spy for General Washington, posing as a fop, and is instrumental in exposing the treason of Benedict Arnold.

Other fiction: A GOOD FAMILY by Lyon; THE TENDERFOOT by Kent; EXIT SCREAMING by Stevens.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Two new stories of Cherokee Indians and their neighbors have been added to the collection in the Children's department of the Mansfield Public Library. One is for boys and the other for girls who like Indian stories.

HICKORY LIMB, by Margaret Ann Hubbard—Tremble Lovelace and Aunt Abbie were kidnaped from the potato patch where they were hoeing near the fort. They were taken to a Cherokee village where they were held as prisoners. When the Indians went to war there was a thrilling rescue followed by further incidents in the Revolutionary war.

YOUNG BROTHER, by Charlie May Simon—Sungi was a Cherokee boy who was called "younger brother" by Bullhead, his boastful chum. Sungi's grandfather trained Sungi to be a brave warrior and also to realize the importance of education as well as physical superiority. At last he outgrew his unpleasant nickname.

Acron, a Greek physician, is reputed to have originated fumigation in 473 B. C., halting a plague in Athens by burning aromatics in great fires.

HOME DEFENSE SUPPLIES HERE

Fire Hose, Arm Bands Arrive For City's Civilian Protection.

Equipment for Mansfield's civilian defense units began arriving yesterday afternoon with receipt of fire hose and arm band insigne.

It is expected that additional equipment, including seven pumpers for the auxiliary fire force, will be received within the next few days, Service Director Fred B. Wolff, custodian of government issue property, said.

Helmets for air wardens and others were received some weeks ago. Yesterday's shipment included 2,800 feet of 2½-inch regulation fire hose and 1,400 feet of 1½-inch hose. There were 3,060 arm bands included in the consignment.

Police Captain Jesse J. Schwab, instructor for the auxiliary police, reported progress on the turning out of nightsticks to be used by auxiliarymen. The work is being done by inmates of Ohio State Reformatory.

Schwab today was completing assembly of mimeographed sheets into compact and comprehensive textbooks for auxiliary members. The text deals with all police matters with which the defense auxiliary will be charged in case of an enemy attack.

ATTEND ASSEMBLY

CELERYVILLE — Rev. Gerald Van Laar and Elder Joe Fransens of the local church are attending the classis of the Christian Reformed church at Kalamazoo, Mich., this week.

DRAFTED AGAIN ON SAME DATE

TROY, N. Y. —(U.P.)— A veteran of the first World war, Charles D. Guerin walked into the office of his draft board waving a piece of paper:

"Look what I brought along with me, my induction notice for the first World war.

Sure enough, the paper showed that Guerin was called up for induction in the first World war on Sept. 9—the same day and month the board called him for induction in the second war.

The international meat trade began with the exportation of tinned or canned beef from Australia

START SINKING 2ND TEST WELL

Waterworks Superintendent Says Work to Begin Next Week on New Attempt.

Sinking of a second test well to increase the city's water supply in event of a war-created demand for greater volume likely will be started early next week.

O. C. Kalbfleisch, waterworks superintendent, said today that a well drilled in the Lexington-Ontario region apparently has failed to touch the gravel strata which is generally found in that area. The 90-foot shaft will be abandoned, for the time being.

The second well will be drilled about 300 feet on the other side of Clear Fork creek in an effort to tap the gravel formation. Pumping of any promising test well will determine whether or not it is in sympathy with any wells now in use—that is, if its flow reduces the output of any well being pumped.

Records in Kalbfleisch's office show that maximum pumping capacity at present is well in excess of top demands but the additional sources will be established to serve any industrial development or increase in domestic consumption which might come about.

What's Bert Lahr doing? . . . Aren't you getting tired of night club military experts who soap-box about the Second Front within earshot of a rhumba band?

Why doesn't Vera Shea, the showgirl, wear that $8,000 bracelet given to her by that well-known playboy? . . . Did you know the army liked Ginv Simms' new radio program so much that she was promoted from a corporal to a sergeant? . . . Have you noticed Georgie Jessel's complexion lately? HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Another side of Hollywood:

Ernest Park, young, well-dressed, personable, stepped between the director and the camera, looked critically at Rosalind Russell's face and opened a small black bag he carried.

Coons

He produced a tiny vial, a small soft brush, and asked Rosalind to remove the aviatrix's goggles she wears in "Stand By To Die." Presently tiny smudges appeared where the tight-fitting goggles touched the Russell cheek and there was a hint of dust on her nose. Park stepped back, the scene went on.

* * *

Park is a make-up man, and a grade-A movie fan. Born in Scotland, he came to Los Angeles as a small boy. Ten years ago he decided he would like a job in pictures — because he was a movie fan and the business intrigued him. He tried for months to get in.

"Almost every day I'd call on 'Cap' Duncan at Columbia studios, but there'd be no getting by the gates," he says. "Finally Duncan said, "I'll have to get you a job in self-defense.' The next week I went to work as a messenger."

Having studied art in school and done watercolor work, he became a make-up apprentice for three years, then a make-up artist. He likes the work—wants to become "the very best in the business." He likes almost all the people he has worked with, but R. Russell is his favorite — for interesting conversation, for helpful ideas, for happy disposition.

* * *

Minimum scale for Park's classification is $139.15 a week, 60 hours, extra pay for overtime. Park's longest lay-off came last year, when he was jobless 25 days. Many make-up artists, however, know longer lean periods.

Park is married, has no children, lives in his own home in Hollywood. Mrs. Park is a movie fan too—they talk about movies at home, read movie and gossip columns, and go to movies often — preferably musicals and light comedies. He always catches the films he has worked on, and studies the make-up jobs. All their friends are non-movie—"it gives us a change and has worked out fine."

* * *

He leaves his car at home and rides a bicycle to the studio—ure conservation—and he and his wife have an "automobile agreement" which limits its use to absolute necessity. He is senior air raid warden in his district, a Victory gardener, and an ardent War Bonder—more than 20 per cent now and planning to increase it.

Most interesting make-up jobs of his six year's experience were at Columbia on "The Face Behind the Mask" and at RKO on "Once Upon a Honeymoon." The latter was a "beard job" on Walter Slezak, and for Lorre he had to make up the actor and then make up the mask.

NEW PIPE LINE TO SUPPLY GAS TO OHIO FIRMS

Hope Company to Bring Fuel To Northeast From Fields In Texas, Louisiana.

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA — The Hope Natural Gas Co., of West Virginia plans a $42,000,000 pipe line to bolster the natural gas supply of northeastern Ohio steel mills and other industries in the Applachian area.

L. L. Tokin, Hope president and general manager, disclosed plans for the 1,000-mile line into Louisiana and Texas after appearing at a securities and exchange commission hearing here yesterday.

He said the line, designed to alleviate a predicted gas shortage in the Applachian area, would connect with Hope's West Virginia system at the Kentucky border.

The 20-inch pipe would carry about 285,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day for distribution to northeastern Ohio, northern West Virginia and western Pennsylvania.

The line would be the first to connect the Applachian area—Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky—with fields in Texas and Louisiana Tonkin estimated it would take 10 months to build.

The Clarksburg, W. Va., utility executive said his company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, was preparing applications for approval of priorities on materials for the line which would be financed by Hope Natural Gas.

He declined to say whether he had contacted the war production board or other government agencies on project

The SEC hearing is on an application of the newly-formed Consolidated Natural Gas company, also a Standard subsidiary, to take over Hope, the East Ohio Gas company, the River Gas company, and the People's Natural Gas company in an effort to escape provisions of the holding company act.

Tonkin asserted at the hearing that "we're getting to a point where we won't be able to supply the continued large demand."

Later, in an answer to a question by a reporter, Tonkin said Hope's storage of natural gas was expected to run out by Jan. 1, 1944, and then we'll be in a serious situation."

Hope's 1941 production from West Virginia wells, he said, was about 27,000,000,000 cubic feet, as compared with sales of 60,000,000,000 feet.

MAN KILLED IN TEST BLACKOUT

Cleveland Defense Messenger Meets Death in Cycle Crash During Trial.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Although last night's 20-minute county-wide blackout was termed "successful" by Civilian Defense officials today, the practice alarm's final report was too realistic when it was discovered that one person had been killed and another seriously injured during the dimout.

Donald Bradley, 22, of North Royalton was killed and George Kale, 21, also of North Royalton, was injured when their motorcycles collided while performing their duties as Civilian Defense messengers.

The youths had been sent, according to Henry Stein, chief air raid warden in their zone, to check the territory for violations in the blackout, but Stein said he had instructed them not to use their motorcycles.

The accident occurred shortly after the blackout began. Bradley was the only son of North Royalton Councilman Ben Bradley and both youths had been active in Civilian Defense activities in their area.

William A. Stinchcomb, county defense director in voicing his opinion about the blackout said, it was "not perfection, but awfully close to it."

"There was a fraction of not more than one per cent violation," he reported. "Action will be taken against the violators and warrants will be sworn out where advisable."

BROMFIELD IN N. Y. TO AID HOME DEFENSE, WAR MOVIE RESEARCH

Louis Bromfield was to arrive in New York today to address a public gathering at City Hall in the interests of recruiting volunteers for civilian defense and to do further research in connection with the script he is writing for a war department film dealing with the Free French.

The Richland county author, who recently returned from a several weeks' stay in Hollywood where he began preparation for the script, will devote the greater part of the next week to reviewing feature films and newsreels with an eye to obtaining cuttings vital to the subject matter of the picture. Hours were given over to this work while the author was in Hollywood. Among the films that have yielded unusual material were several made in Germany and now in the possession of the New York Museum of Art.

While in New York, Bromfield will preside at a mass meeting to be held Tuesday night in Carnegie Hall where the question of India will be discussed. Claire Boothe Luce will be the speaker. En route home the author will stop in Cleveland to address a meeting of Manpower commission officials from six states, Sept. 30 at the Mid Day club.

The Free French film is one of a "Know Your Friends — Know Your Enemies" series being produced by the war department primarily for showing to the American armed forces. Bromfield explained before his departure for the east last night. It will be available however for public showing.

Designed to acquaint the country's fighting men with the story of friend and foe in other lands, the series will introduce the Free French through the narrative of the Richland countian who lived for years in France and now heads the French-American club. Bromfield is also vice president of the France Forever organization.

The picture will be assembled and made by two noted Hollywood directors, Frank Capra and Anatole Litvak. Charles Boyer, prominent French actor, will be the narrator. While much of the film will be compiled from cuttings from previous pictures the scenes showing current developments in Free France will be screened in Hollywood with a French cast.

Bromfield is writing the commentary which will trace the history of France and its colonies from the beginning to 1942 when the much-discussed underground movement is only one phase of the effort being made by the people to overthrow tyranny.

When it comes to bringing in the scrap four grade school pupils who termed themselves the "Junior Commandos," set a precedent for the rest of the city. In fact they went the people of Nebraska one better in the averaging per capita collection of scrap the past summer. The quartet included Frank and Gordon Black and Stephen Henkel, Country Day school pupils, and Teddy Bullock, seventh grader at Appleseed school and the senior of the other three boys by several years. Using Raemelton Farm as the site for their drive the boys collected approximately three tons of scrap that included old machinery they took apart for the purpose. The sale amounted to $16 which was divided equally among the four workers after each had pledged himself to buy only war stamps with his share.

CONVENTION TO SCORE BRICKER FINANCE STAND

State Platform Also To Hit Republicans on Expediting of Soldier Vote.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—A division of the state's treasury surplus among local governments will be the principal plank in the state Democratic party's first war-time platform in a quarter century, Democratic party spokesmen revealed today.

"Apportionment of that huge surplus the Republican state administration has built up among deserving local subdivisions surely will be one of our chief planks," the spokesman said.

He added that Gov. John W. Bricker's refusal to assemble the legislature to expedite absentee soldier voting would be "probably second in importance to the surplus issue as a platform plank."

The revelation was made as Democrats prepared to assemble for the Democratic state platform convention which begins tonight. U. S. Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming will deliver the keynote address.

John McSweeney of Wooster, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, will address the convention and is expected to make "one of his most important" speeches of the campaign.

McSweeney is expected to reveal the general character and content of the party platform.

The platform, which will be prepared by the resolutions committee tonight, is expected to endorse the national administration's war policies as well as President Roosevelt's domestic policies.

It will be presented for adoption at Saturday's concluding session of the convention.

Initial action on Bricker's refusal to call the legislature to correlate federal and state election laws on soldier voting was taken yesterday by the Federated Democratic Women of Ohio in a convention session which started the Democratic meetings.

The women's organization went on record in favor of the action of Secretary of State John E. Sweeney in requesting the special legislative session.

The Federated Democratic women also endorse proposed changes in voting hours which would keep the polls open two hours longer in an effort to enable farmers and war workers to vote and still maintain production at war-time levels.

HELEN FRIDAY IS BRIDE OF CROP. DALE BRYAN

BEFORE an improvised altar of palms, ferns, two beauty baskets of dahlias and two seven-branch candelabra, Miss Helen K. Friday became the bride of Corp. Dale T. Bryan at 7:30 Thursday evening. Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Friday, Park avenue west road.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bryan, R.D. 2, Bellville. Preceding the exchange of vows, nuptial music was played by Miss Lois L. Laubscher and sung by Miss Mary McCartney. Piano selection was "Thine Alone." Miss McCartney sang "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses," "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in an ice blue taffeta gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and full skirt. Her only jewelry was a string of pearls, gift of the bridegroom, and she carried an Irish point lace handkerchief that was brought back from France by her uncle, the late Dr. Remy, after World war I. An arrangement of stephanotis held in place the bride's shoulder-length veil. Her semi-colonial bouquet was of gardenias, stephanotis and white pompon chrysanthemums tied with narrow white satin ribbons.

Maid of honor for her sister was Miss Martha Jane Friday. She wore a fuchsia-colored gown styled similar to the bride's. Narrow, two-tone fuchsia ribbons tied Miss Friday's semi-colonial bouquet of pink and yellow roses, blue delphinium and pink and lavender pompons. A small arrangement of the flowers was worn in her hair.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Friday chose a black silk crepe dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of red roses and white pompon chrysanthemums tied with red satin ribbons. A green silk dress and brown accessories were worn by Mrs. Bryan, who had a corsage of yellow roses and pompon chrysanthemums tied with yellow satin ribbons.

Roy Randall of Fredericktown, brother-in-law of Corp. Bryan, served as best man. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home, which was decorated throughout with bouquets of dahlias. Refreshments were served to 50 guests from a table centered with a four-tier wedding cake which was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The appointments included candles, an arrangement of plumosa, and the bouquets of the bride and her attendant.

When Corp. and Mrs. Bryan left for a trip to an undisclosed destination, the bride was attired in a two-piece defense blue dress with wine-colored accessories. She had a corsage of gardenias and stephanotis tied with white satin ribbons. Upon the couple's return, the bride will continue to stay at the home of her parents and Corp. Bryan will return to Camp Edwards, Mass., where he is stationed.

Mrs. Bryan was graduated from Springfield township high school and Mansfield Business Training school. She is employed as a secretary for the Ohio Public Service company. Corp. Bryan is a graduate of Johnsville high school.

National Charter Given to Health For Victory Club

Mrs. James Anderson, president of the Westinghouse Health for Victory club, received a national charter on behalf of members at the eighth monthly meeting yesterday afternoon in the company auditorium. The presentation was made by Mrs. Julia Kiene, originator and director of the national organization.

Inscribed with the company's name and mounted on an attractive red frame, this charter is number one nationally, indicating that the local group was the first of more than 200 organizations of this kind to organize.

In her timely food lecture and demonstration, Mrs. Kiene proved that meat rationing would bring no serious hardship to any American family and she pointed out that compared with meat rationing in other countries we in this nation are very fortunate. "Average yearly meat consumption from 1931 to 1940 was 131 pounds per person," declared the speaker. "The present rationing plans of two and a half pounds of meat per person each week amounts to only 130 pounds for a year. That's nearly as much as our average consumption in the past."

Compared to European countries we are very fortunate, the home economics head explained, because weekly meat rationing allows only 4 ounces per person. In Belgium it is 5 ounces; Holland, nine ounces; Germany 12.5 ounces; and in England 16 ounces each week. "Our 40 ounces per person each week looks very generous by this scale," she declared.

Considerable emphasis was stressed on the grading of meats by the United States department of Agriculture. "Look for the markings stamped on each cut of meat when you buy," she suggested. They are graded in the following way: Prime, choice, good, commercial, and utility. If it is marked with "good" you can be sure of a satisfactory cut of meat.

The auditorium was nearly filled for yesterday's meeting, and all received the October issue of the Meal Planning Guide with lunch box suggestions, menus for every meal of the month, and general rules to follow in cooking fresh, canned or frozen vegetables. It was announced that the next meeting will be held in the company auditorium, Oct. 29.

Makeup for This Summer Is Lighter

By MME. QUI VIVE

Some of our smart young ladies may fancy that the lipstick is a modern institution. There's nothing new about make up; it is as old as the hills. It preceded the first mirror. The lovelies of Cathay painted themselves from head to foot with blue clay. Beauty frenzies probably started with Eve, who may have tinted her lips with wild strawberries for all we know. Maidens of the Ming period burned willow twigs, used them for eyebrow pencils. Fancy that, you girls who ply srayons.

Well, my hearties, what have we now in the way of synthetic helps? The counterfeit blush, which blazed in all its glory a few years ago, is taking a back seat. When it does appear before the public eye it is faint of tone, cleverly laid on, blended and patted. No more blaring outlines as when carmine was applied in wholesale lots. We're going subtle, if not positively coy.

There are women to whom cheek bloom is becoming. It makes them more vivid and alive, boosts their morale. There are others—the retiring, timid type—who are out of character when they use it.

Lipsticks are darker than they have been in the past, some inclining toward raspberry, tints, others are on the damask rose order. They are enticing when the skin has tanned to a lovely gold. Rouge can be slightly lighter. Powder must never be fainter than the skin tone. And don't forget that at this season of the year one must endeavor to look cool. Fire engine makeup is unattractive enough in cold weather; on a hot day it looks sweltering.

Foundation cosmetics appear to be going strong, more and more of the beauty clientele using them. They come in bottles and jars. We suggest buying small-sized packages of these toiletries. What suits one skin is not always the happy choice for the next.

Don't apply immediately after the face has been washed. Give the flesh a chance to dry thoroughly.

Eye shadows are makeup luxuries. You have to be pretty smart make a woman look mysteriously lovely or they can make her look cheap and smudgy. The woman who uses them in the daytime ought to know better. They belong to the festive evening makeup.

When applying complexion aids, all the features should be considered in their relationship to each other. Over-accenting the mouth with brilliant coloring will consign the loveliest eyes to second place. There must be restraint. The old head has to work to attain flattering effects.

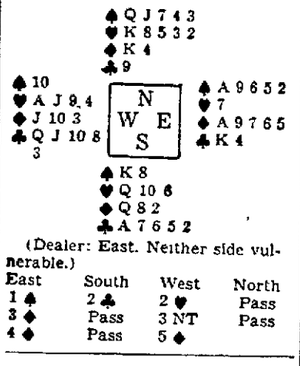
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T YOU UNBLOCK?

When an opponent throws a high honor on a higher one, leaving himself the next higher in dummy—perhaps a sequence of several—that is not necessarily because the honor he sacrificed was a singleton. He may have played it because he was trying to unblock the suit. You make such plays yourself, and should reason that the declarer will make them, too. Hence you should not be too positive about your snap-judgment card reading without first pausing to question whether it is correct or not.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♦	Pass	3 NT	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	5 ♦

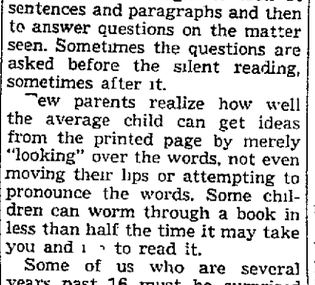
South should have defeated that game, but failed. He laid down his club A to get a look at dummy. When East played the K on the trick, his thinking was shallow. He reckoned that East took out the 3-No Trumps because he had only the singleton K in clubs, and that therefore North held originally the 9 and 4. He knew, of course, from the bidding that East probably had two five-card suits, and recided his doubleton was in hearts.

More solid thinking would have shown that a singleton club K would have been no reason for taking out the No Trumper, as West took responsibility for the hostile suit when he made his own bid. But a singleton in hearts would have been a good reason for the takeout, as only one lead of the suit could have been made toward West's hand. If South had planned thus, he would have counted East for two clubs, and would have seen the sure way to set the hand, by a second club lead, which North would ruff. The diamond Q would then remain to take the setting trick.

But South, thinking East had the singleton, switched to the heart Q, which the A won. The diamond J was covered by the K and won by the A, then the diamond 5 led to the Q—last trick the defenders took. The heart 6 to the 9 and K was ruffed by the diamond 6, the spade A cashed, the spade 2 ruffed by the diamond 10, four clubs taken for discards of the last three spades, the heart 4 ruffed by the diamond 7 and the diamond 9 used for the final trick.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

After East leads the diamond 2, West playing the Q, how should North try to make 4-Hearts on his deal?

Is Better to Have Child Read Aloud

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

YOU PROBABLY know that in the average schoolroom of today children rarely read aloud, particularly above the second grade. Silent reading is the rage.

Children are taught to look at sentences and paragraphs and then to answer questions on the matter seen. Sometimes the questions are asked before the silent reading, sometimes after it.

Few parents realize how well the average child can get ideas from the printed page by merely "looking" over the words, not even moving their lips or attempting to pronounce the words. Some children can worm through a book in less than half the time it may take you and I to read it.

Some of us who are several years past 16 must be surprised to find a child of eight or 10 to be quicker than we are at silent reading. Those who learn to pronounce aloud every word as they read it find rapid reading difficult.

Silent reading does not contribute much to vocabulary, and to form of expression. Even some school authorities are beginning to say they believe oral reading in the school has been too much neglected. Whether it has or has not, you and I can do our children good by encouraging them to read aloud at home.

Persuade your child to read aloud to you from material which he can read with great ease and, therefore, with pleasure. Learn to listen courteously so he will enjoy the reading. Make him feel that he is entertaining you, and he will want to go on. Let him believe he is merely reciting another lesson, and he will find reading aloud unattractive.

How fine it is for the junior or senior high school pupil to read aloud some of his assignments to his parents.

Where there is more than one child in the family induce the older to read to the younger. Babies before they are two years old enjoy being read to. There is nothing finer for their education and happiness if frightening stories are avoided.

HOROSCOPE

FOR SATURDAY, SEPT. 26

It may be possible to make this a moderately pleasant and profitable day by the exercise of individual resistance to many temptations to lavish and unjustified expenditures or extravagances. Other forms of indulgence, excess and prodigality in both business and personal life may exact heavy penalties. Deception, fraud, misrepresentation, gambling and speculation or legal entanglements may be indicated, especially for young and unwary.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year calling for the utmost prudence, moderation and integrity in all form of expression. Youthful indiscretions are hinted at. Business irregularities, together with strong urges to self-indulgence, extravagance and excesses of all kinds, may incite to dangerous and regrettable situations, with difficult penalties. Sign papers cautiously. Shun legal entanglements.

A child born on this day may need rigid training and discipline to direct its impulses and desires into worthy, useful and laudable pathways in life. Its tendency may be to extravagance.

Wandering Mate Tale Reversed

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The story of the philandering husband went into reverse today, when a woman wrote to me that she had philandered, and that her husband not only forgave, but was "so sweet" to her she can never do anything wrong again.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"When I read in your column the other day about a woman who had been happily married for years and whose husband had stepped out on her a few times while he was away from home, it prompted this letter to you.

"Please tell her to forget all about it. I had the same experience in our home, but it was I who did the stepping out. He was away, working nights, and I got lonesome and wanted to have a good time. I did, and finally my husband found out about it. He did exactly the opposite from anything I had expected.

"Instead of leaving me or getting mad, he blamed himself. Since then he has taken me out in the afternoons, bought me flowers and candy. When he couldn't go with me, he has planned for someone to take me to shows and someone else to take care of our two-year-old son. In fact, he has been so sweet to me that I could never think of doing anything wrong. Never, never!

"He suggests things that keep me so busy during the day that often I have to do my housework at night, after he has gone. He knows I love dancing, so he has started taking dancing lessons.

"Please tell this woman that she should try to treat her husband as my husband treated me. Maybe her husband strayed because she didn't give him the attention she should have given him. In marriage it isn't the big things that count, like being a perfect housekeeper and a good cook. More important is whether a man wants to go out and have a good time, and whether his wife is willing to go with him.

"It's fatal always to say 'No,' or complain that she's tired after a day's work. She should learn how to say 'yes,' and the little outing to a dance or a movie will relax them both. She'll soon forget how tired she is.

"Please tell this lady who wrote you how well tolerance and forgiveness worked in our family. We are both much happier now than we were when we first married, three years ago.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"At least," I told Lillian, "until Marion is safely back with us, and the members of the gang hunting for Jack and the secret of his cryptograms have all been dealt with as they deserve."

"Does Carolyn know what happened to the young man?" Lillian asked, then answered her own query. "But, of course, she can't, or she wouldn't be making such frantic efforts to find him.

"And now, Madge, don't be afraid of me or of what I may do. I'm myself again. Please send Harry in. I don't care what you do with Carolyn, only get her out of my sight!"

"I'll see that she's out of the house as soon as I get hold of my father and find out what he wants me to do," I said. "But there are two favors I'd like to ask of you."

Ronald To Stay.

"You've only to name them," she said, with a wan smile.

"First, may Ronald stay here? I don't think it would be pleasant for him to listen to my father's interrogation of his sister."

"Of course he may stay. Do you think he will want to?"

"I don't think it will matter what he wishes," I said. "He is under Father's orders, and I am sure Father won't want him to come with us.

"Now the other favor is this: Can you and Harry get along without Miss Whitlock for a few hours—perhaps longer?"

"Surely," she said heartily. "We can take care of each other, and I can see where you will need her in dealing with Carolyn."

"Thank you," I said, "and now I'll be running along. Good-bye, and keep up your courage, girl. You can be sure Marion is safe as long as the gangsters can't get hold of Jack Bickett. And while I don't know where Jack is, I'm sure my father does, and that he is safe from attack."

Madge Reports.

Then I rushed back to Harry and Dicky.

"Is Lillian all right?" the big man demanded.

"Very much so," I returned. "Now she is completely convinced of Carolyn's treachery, and asks only that the girl be kept out of her sight.

"I knew you'd turn the trick, Lady Fair," Harry Underwood said, and Dicky's eyes telegraphed approval.

"And now what's the program?" Dick said. "You're the general. Give us our orders."

"Lillian wants to see you, Harry," I said, "and when Ronald comes out will you tell him my father wishes him to stay here and rest until he is sent for."

"Ah-h!" Dicky said. "I can see where I'm going to be in on that third degree for little Carol:"

"Perhaps," I told him, as Harry hurried away. "But first, I want you to go to a pay station where calls can't be traced, and ask Father to hurry over here."

"I'm flying to obey your orders," he said. "I take time off to kiss you only so you won't think I'm sore at you."

He kissed me expertly and murmured: "I really wanted a kiss, besides," then hurried out.

I went upstairs and knocked at the door where I had left Miss Whitlock and Carolyn. The nurse opened it a mere crack.

Carolyn was sitting in a big chair at the other side of the room, apparently quiescent, but Miss Whitlock, even when opening the door, did not take her eyes from the girl.

"Mrs. Underwood says she can spare you to us for a little while, if you don't mind," I said.

"As a jailer for me, I suppose," Carolyn said with venom in her voice.

Elyria Seeks Revenge Against Mansfield High Tonight

Sport Podge by Rex Hess

Ever since last spring when a government order banned further use of school buses for transportation of high school athletic teams to games, and bus companies suspended use of their vehicles for that purpose, there has been much speculation on what the schools would do about it.

Also there has been much moaning, and weeping and wailing, and vigorous protests, and stuff. But that didn't solve the problem.

Some schools revised their schedules to take advantage of railroad facilities. Bucyrus is a notable example in this section.

* * *

And others are doing just what everybody knew they'd have to do all along—using private cars, and that many more tires and that much more gasoline.

Akron Lincoln went in private cars to Coshocton last week, and in doing so had to cut its squad to 24 players, which is enough to play a ball game, but trims down the reserve strength. Sixteen tires on four cars got much more wear that day than the rubber on one bus would have taken.

* * *

Next we'll take it on the bum
And make our way by rule of thumb.

* * *

Elyria's football team comes to Mansfield tonight—in private cars. But they're just one week late to live up to their nickname of Pioneers.

How large a squad they'd bring along not even Coach Roy Clymer knew as late as yesterday. But it was generally guessed the squad would not number more than 24 or 25. And that's still alright, if not too many players get hurt and substitutes are really needed.

It's the first time an Elyria football team has travelled in automobiles in years and years.

* * *

Mansfield is fortunate in having only three road trips on the schedule. And it is more than likely that two of those trips, to Canton and Springfield, will be made by train.

And how will the Tygers travel to Sandusky next week-end?

"I only wish I knew."

* * *

How to get there brings a frown,
Too bad the one-hoss shay broke down.

Badger Tackle Leads Fort Knox

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Sergt. Frank J. Lopp, 220 pounds of sheer brawn, newly elected captain of the army's Fort Knox gridiron contingent, leads his husky "Armoraiders" into Ohio capital today for Saturday's curtain raiser with Ohio State university's speedy Bucks.

Lopp, a tackle who played two years under Coach Harry Stuhldreher at the University of Wisconsin, was elected pilot of the "Armoraiders" yesterday.

Coach Joe Bach said his Fort Knox starting line-up would include 10 former college players and one ex-high school gridder.

Odds On Cardinals Reduced

Experts See Cooper as Yankee Handcuffer.

THE St. Louis Cardinals, close to clinching the National league pennant, are likely to be the shortest priced entry the senior circuit has sent against the New York Yankees in many years simply because of one man—Mort Cooper.

* * *

The bettors tentatively are calling 10 to 7 against the Cardinals in the world series and this is quite a tribute to the big righthanded pitcher who they figure might handcuff the world champions.

* * *

Cooper has shown he is capable of beating just about any club in baseball any time his teammates get him one run. Yesterday he whitewashed the Cincinnati Reds 6-0 to assure the Cardinals of at least a tie for the pennant and put them in a position to clinch it today or tomorrow.

It was Cooper's 22nd victory against seven defeats and he allowed only two hits. It also was Cooper's tenth shut out, not only the best mark of any pitcher in the major leagues this year, but the best of any hurler since Carl Hubbell pitched ten scoreless games for the New York Giants in 1933.

Today, the Dodgers were in danger of marking the anniversary of last year's pennant-clinching by being eliminated from the race. They came up against the Braves for the last time and a defeat would knock them out of even a chance to tie. They clinched the flag a year ago today.

* * *

The Dodgers downed Boston 5-3 yesterday by coming from behind with four runs in the sixth inning after spotting the Braves three runs on four hits and three errors in the third frame.

* * *

In the only other National league activity yesterday the Phils and New York Giants divided a doubleheader. Bill Lohrman pitched New York to victory in the first game, 8-0, with a sturdy four-hit performance.

In the nightcap the Giants were held to four hits by John Podgajny and George Hennessy and beaten 3-2.

The American league competition was limited to one doubleheader which the White Sox took from Cleveland 3-1 and 4-2 to push the Indians within half a game of dropping out of the first division.

VETERANS START

MINNEAPOLIS — (INS) — The Pittsburgh Panthers are going to meet an experienced Minnesota team when they clash Saturday. A survey of the possible Gopher starting lineup today disclosed that a letterman will be in every spot with the exception of one guard, Charles Dellago.

RIO GRANDE KEEPS LOSS STREAK GOING

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The losing streak of little Rio Grande college down in the Gallia county hills is still intact and growing steadily.

Not since mid-season in 1937 have the Red Men won a football game, and they took no chances on breaking the long string last night.

They bowed, 47 to 0, to West Virginia Institute of Technology at Montgomery, W. Va. A week ago Rio Grande dropped a 25-0 verdict to Louisville university.

Four Shutouts Rolled In Loop

Roy Vaughn Collects 646 In B-League.

Four shutouts were scored in opening matches of the Commercial "B" bowling league at Colony alleys last night, and the clean-sweep winners, Jake Miller's, Mansfield Printing, Mansfield Rug and Linoleum and Ringside Nite club, naturally start off in a tie for first place in the loop.

Roy Vaughn blasted a 646 total on games of 222-192-232 for top individual honors, and Joe Harrod turned in a 603 total on 180-221-202.

Aungst edged Vaughn for high game with a 237, while Ray Anthony and Cliff Forsythe turned in 225 games, and Flood 221.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—It was just a year ago today that Them Beautiful Bums won the National league pennant, so what could be more appropriate than if Them Bums (no longer beautiful) should lose their last chance today. . . . They've been going backward this season just about as fast as they moved up last year. . . . But this is one time the Dodger fans can holler "Wait till next year" and mean it (even if Durocher leaves along with MacPhail). . . . Those middle aged guys with families may be the best ball players left by next summer. . . . Seems that even the Dodger fans are slowing up: the guy who turned in a machine-gun as scrap metal at Ebbets Field didn't do it until Tuesday. He should have thought of it when the Cards were in town.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Al Hirshberg, Boston Post: "Here's the greatest double play combination of the season: the fans at Little Rock gave a purse of $1,000 to Manager Willis Hudlin in appreciation of the fine job he did there. . . . Hudlin promptly turned the money over to the players. . . . And the players, in turn, donated it to the Army and Navy Relief societies."

PESKY PARADISE.

When Vince Pesky got back home to Portland, Ore., after spending a couple of weeks with Brother Johnny of the Red Sox, he reported that his biggest thrill came on "kids' day" at the Fenway park when Johnny hit three for five. . . . When they started to leave the park, the gateman warned Johnny he'd be mobbed if he left by the main entrance.

SUGGESTS FIGHTERS HAVE TO LIVE TOO

NEW YORK — (AP) — Mike Jacobs doesn't know what War Secretary Stimson is investigating about the Joe Louis-Billy Conn bout, but since there's been so much hollering over $94,000 the two boxers owe him, Make wonders if folks realize that fighters depend on promoters for money to keep going between fights.

Stimson announced his investigation in Washington yesterday, saying he was "shocked" over details of the arrangements for the Oct. 12 fight in Yankee Stadium.

Tourney Draws 42 Entries

Surprising Record For War-Time Golf Set.

A surprising war-time record has just been posted in the entry list for Sunday's third annual Richland county golf tournament at Westbrook Country club. A total of 42 entries was reported today, just three short of the field which battled in the rain at Westbrook a year ago.

* * *

Golfers start teeing off at 8:30 Sunday morning, with the last of the 14 threesomes due to leave the tee at 9:35.

* * *

Nearly all the top-ranking golfers still in the county are entered, but gallerytes will probably find most interest in following the threesome leaving No. 1 tee at 9 a. m., when Gene Zediker, champion of Westbrook, Joe Mayer, champion of Coolridge, and Al Kushin, champion of Possum Run, swing into action.

In addition to prizes purchased through entry fees, Mansfield merchants have donated prizes to extend down through the top 32 finishers in the 42 field.

Pioneers Remember Last Years' Defeat

Both Teams Weakened By Loss of Veteran End; Tygers Defend Record

ELYRIA'S PIONEERS come to town tonight seeking revenge for a 39 to 0 walloping handed them last year by Mansfield's undefeated high school Tygers, and word from Elyria has it that the Pioneers believe they have a good chance of getting revenge.

"It is no secret," says the Elyria Chronicle-Telegram, "that from Coach Roy Clymer down through the list of the lowest sub, the Mansfield game is one game on the schedule that the Pioneers want to win.

"The Pioneers really took a beating last year, and the whipping they received physically was one from which they never recovered for the remainder of the season."

* * *

The Elyria paper reports that Louie Kolopus and Wade Burns, who scouted the Mansfield 14-6 victory over Akron West last week told the Pioneers they believe Elyria can take Mansfield tonight.

Harry Mehock, who scouted Elyria's 8-6 victory over Oberlin, believes Mansfield can win tonight, so, in lieu of letting the scouts fight it out, the Tygers and Pioneers will get together at 8 o'clock to settle the matter themselves.

The Tygers now have a record of 12 straight games without a defeat, and they are not apt to let that record go without a scrap. Last defeat on the Mansfield record was handed the Tygers by Canton McKinley in 1940. They wound up that season with a victory over Shelby, went unbeaten through ten games in 1941, and continued the string last Friday night.

They will be handicapped tonight by the loss of big Bill Lewis, veteran end and punter. Sam Musille probably will start at his wing post, while Dick Butterfield will handle most of the kicking assignments.

Elyria also will be weakened by the loss of a veteran end through injury, Captain George Brunner being unlikely to start. Like Mansfield, Elyria will depend on a sophomore to take over in place of the injured flankman. Norm Henry, six foot, one inch sophomore who weighs 160 pounds, is getting the starting nod.

Probable lineups for tonight's games will be:

Mansfield		Elyria
Burrage	LE	Henry
Snyder	LT	Lebow
Goettle	LG	Bara
Snowden	C	Keech
Hetler	RG	Grueser
Metcalfe	RT	Schuster
S. Musille	RE	Flowers
Rachel	QB	Yarsa
Butterfield	LH	Traicoff
Boyce	RH	Stydnicki
Zellers	FB	Hopkins

Coach Paul Snyder of the Tygers has indicated that Roland Schmidt who flashed to the two touchdown runs that brought victory to Mansfield a week ago, may be held out as a climax runner.

He also has indicated that Dominic Musille will see plenty of action, and don't be too surprised if both these boys are in the starting lineup.

STOCK MARKET TAKES ANOTHER STEP FORWARD

Retail Spending Throughout Nation Reaches Peak For Season.

NEW YORK—The stock market took another step forward today. Gainers of fractions included Chrysler, Western Union, Kennecott, Atlantic Coast Line, N. Y. Central and U. S. Rubber.

Merchandising shares came in for study as Dun & Bradstreet reported this week's retail spending throughout the country reached a seasonal peak. Night openings and cooler weather spurred demand for goods, it was said, and dollar volume for all sections was placed at 2 to 4 per cent above the comparable 1941 period.

Confirmation of the purchasing swing was found in the Federal Reserve compilation estimating last week's department store sales for the nation as a whole exceeded the like week a year ago by 5 per cent. New York City was an exception, showing a decline of 6 per cent.

DOGS KEEP HIM OUT OF HOUSE

STEUBENVILLE —(UP)— Sheriff Robert D. Bales received a frantic telephone call last week. It sounded something like the old lady who lived in a shoe, but it did not concern "so many children . . ."

It was Fred Wonnacott from nearby Adena who complained that there were so many unlicensed dogs around his home that he was afraid to enter the domicile. They had menacing attitudes, too.

Two dog wardens were dispatched to the scene and it was soon possible for Wonnacott to enter his house safely.

This Bridegroom Had Good Cause To Be Nervous

FORT ORD, Cal. —(U.P.)— Dan Cupid, overworked love promoter, probably has retired to a heavy-duty padded cell, and all because Pvt. Howard Barger, soldier from Kansas, and Miss Ruby Hazel Cox of Little Rock, Ark., decided to be married.

First of all, Mrs. Fawn Post Trowbridge and Miss Rose Stephenson, hostesses at Fort Ord who were to participate, were nearly half an hour late.

That didn't make any difference, because there was no bridegroom on hand. Private Barger's automobile developed a flat tire after he had picked up the minister.

Then it was discovered the accompanist for a singer was absent. Mrs. Trowbridge volunteered. At the church, the minister discovered he had forgot a carpet on which the couple could kneel. Over their protests, he obtained one.

The USO had arranged a wedding supper, but the minister, who was to have been one of the guests, had promised to milk a neighbor's cow. Milk it he did.

Meanwhile, at the reception, the best man discovered he had forgot to pay the clergyman, so he and the bridesmaid had to drive out in the country to locate the minister.

NAVY SHOES HIM

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)— The existence in San Diego—either by luck, chance, accident or purpose—of a pair of 16-EE shoes enabled Herbert Fruitman, age 19, weight 210 pounds, height 6 feet, 3 inches, to join the Navy.

He tried first to enlist in the army at Los Angeles, then in the Marines, but neither could provide him with the necessary shoes. A search by the Navy here located a pair of adequate size.

harder to get as the war progresses. He said Mohican park needs road improvements and fire protection which probably can be obtained through no other means than by establishment of the conscientious objectors' camp.

Browning said a few of the camps will be established in public land areas by the war department and the Friends church which is sponsoring the objectors' camps.

He asserted that the conservancy district has purchased 700,000 trees for reforestation in the district, including the areas surrounding Mill and Pleasant Hill lakes, and the men in the camps could plant the trees during the coming year.

Otherwise, the shortage of labor may force the district to waste the trees and result in deterioration of the Mohican park area, he added.

11,200 Man Hours Lost In Strike at Alcoa War Plant

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — The three-day CIO strike of smelter workers at the Cleveland plant of the Aluminum Company of America has resulted in the loss of 11,200 man hours and the number of strikers has increased to 500, the company revealed today.

Although Alex Balint, regional director of the CIO-Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union, representing the strikers, promised that at least 75 men would return to work on the late shift last night, none reported, a company spokesman said.

"Neither did any workers report this morning," he said, "and we have lost 11,200 man hours because of the walkout."

It was estimated the alloy ingot stock pile would be exhausted within two or three days unless the strike ends, shutting down the entire operation and forcing the company's 7,000 employes in the five Cleveland plants out of work.

Meanwhile, company officials were in conference over what should be the next move in an attempt to end the strike and have production on warplane materials resumed.

There was a veiled hint that some drastic action was being planned, but what this action was to be was not revealed by company spokesmen.

The strike started at 11 o'clock Tuesday night when 75 smelter workers refused to dress for work. They told air force investigators who have been making a survey of labor difficulties at the strike-plagued plant that they stopped work because they were not given raises when 600 force workers had their pay increased.

The first Wednesday shift failed to report and so did the second, making a total of 225 men on strike. As the walkout progressed another 275 furnace tenders and laborers joined the strikers, increasing the total to 500, the company said.

Balint asserted he was making every effort to have the men return to work and thus end the strike, tenth major work stoppage since January 1.

He said the walkout resulted from failure of the company to settle "justifiable grievances." The company admitted it was baffled by the workers' action because no union demands or grievances had been presented and no reasons for the walkout given.

TRIES TO JOIN ARMY VIA DRAFT

WATERVLIET, N. Y.—(U.P.)—A 16-year-old youth almost got into the army via selective service. The lad, whose name was not revealed, sought in vain to enlist.

He registered for the draft. And when an occupational questionnaire was sent him, his father mailed the boy's birth certificate to the board showing that the latter was born in 1926—not 1923, as listed in draft headquarters.

LOOK FOR RECORD CHRISTMAS SHOPPING SPREE FOR NATION

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Government statisticians predicted today that the nation, earning money at a rate never before equalled in history, will go in its last big shopping spree for the duration this Christmas, with between $5,000,000,000 and $10,000,000,000 in its collective pocket.

While department store stocks are high, the boomtime buying during the Christmas season may exhaust many durable goods lines, like radios and household electrical appliances. Since manufacture of the latter products has been banned, they will be gone for the duration.

Many store shelves are expected to be left empty, and unless there is orderly buying the OPA may be forced to step in and ration essential civilian products like clothing and shoes.

At present, about 40 per cent of the gross national output is being devoted to war, 60 per cent to civilian production. By Christmas of 1943, the figures will be turned around, 60 per cent for war, 40 per cent for civilians. That leaves an overall cut of 20 per cent in civilian output still in prospect.

Because of unusually large investments at the start of the war, the pinch of shortages has not been acutely felt as yet. But the pinch, WPB experts explained, is real enough and it will begin to hurt, they predicted, after Christmas. Because rationing of many articles is in prospect, coupled with the fact that civilian output must inevitably drop in 1943, Christmas 1942 will afford Americans the last big opportunity to go on an unrestricted shopping spree.

National income will hit an all-time high in December, running at a rate of $122,000,000,000 annually then although total income for 1942 will be about $115,000,000,000.

Even the latter figure will be an all-time high as America reaches a national income never before equalled, with new records still ahead. Next year, according to commerce department experts, income will reach $132,00,000,000. The figures compare to $94,700,000,000 last year and $83,000,000,000 back in the hey-days of 1929.

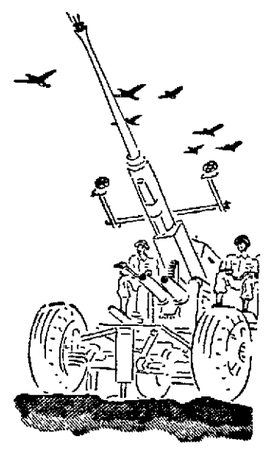
One War Ago Today



. . . people were also making good money, with the result that there was an abundance of spending which in turn created a shortage of soft goods — meaning consumers' merchandise, or shoes, clothes and many other things.

Today the same is true, with one outstanding exception — CEILING PRICES. Shoes and other consumer articles are not going to be higher priced. Many people evidently do not realize this, for retail buying all over the country is heavy and shortages are starting to appear in virtually every line.

You can perform a patriotic duty for your country by buying only what you need. Buy the best, make it last and invest that extra money you have in U. S. WAR BONDS and STAMPS.
